

DO YOU WANT TO BE THE DALÍ'S VOICE?

¿ Would you help us fill the social networks with words by Dalí for the next days? Let us rediscover the pleasure of reading aloud. And listen how books sound!

We encourage you to choose a fragment of these text and record yourself while reading it. Upload the video in your networks with hashtag #DalíBooks. Don't forget to tag @museudali! We will follow you and share your videos in our profiles!

'I call my wife: [...] "Fur Bell" (because she reads to me aloud during my long sessions of painting, making a murmur as of a fur bell by virtue of which I learn all the things that but for her I should never know).'

Salvador Dalí, The Secret Life of Salvador Dalí, 1942

'Gala is sitting in the prow of her boat which is painted Neapolitan yellow. This is the day I think she is more beautiful than at any time in my life. On the beach, the fisherman looks at the flaming countryside. I kneel down once more to thank God that Gala is as beautiful creature as those of Raphael.'

Salvador Dalí, Journal d'un genie, 1964